CISCO SYSTEMS ANNOUNCES SPONSORSHIP OF CABA'S INTELLIGENT & INTEGRATED BUILDINGS CONFERENCE

November 19, 2002

The Continental Automated Buildings Association (CABA) announced today that Cisco Systems, a worldwide leader in networking for the Internet, has joined CABA's 2002 Intelligent & Integrated Buildings Conference as an Inner Circle Sponsor.

CABA's Intelligent & Integrated Buildings Conference is an international event designed to bring together related "large building" stakeholder groups that have an interest in technologies and information related to integrated systems and intelligent buildings.

Industry attendees will listen to industry leaders discuss evolving and breakthrough technologies; review case studies; and share the latest information on topics such as energy management, life-safety, telecom, mechanical systems, wired/wireless and architectural design.

"We are extremely excited to be involved with this high profile conference," stated Kristine Stewart, Director of Market Development for Cisco's Worldwide Commercial Marketing organization. "We sponsored this event to ensure that building owners, operators and managers have an expanded opportunity to understand the competitive advantages and major efficiencies inherent with intelligent building technologies."

The conference, held in conjunction with the 13th Annual Property Management Expo Show, will examine a myriad of topics included integrated building technologies and the effective marketing of smart building services. The theme of the conference will be "Profiting From The Intelligent Building," and the event will be held at the Metro Toronto Convention Centre on December 2-3, 2002, in Toronto, Canada.

Attendees to the conference will include current members of CABA's Intelligent & Integrated Building Council, which was established in November 2001 to monitor initiatives that relate to integrated systems and automation in the "large building" sector. The Council currently consists of 68 members.

The large building industry at large is invited to join CABA's Intelligent & Integrated Buildings Council and participate at the Intelligent & Integrated Buildings Conference.
