February 10, 2015

The Continental Automated Buildings Association, a non-profit trade organization dedicated to the promotion of smart home technologies and integrated and intelligent building systems, is pleased to announce the appointment of Christopher Martin from Robert Bosch LLC to its Board of Directors. Martin replaces Dr. Jeffrey Donne, who represented Bosch on the CABA Board over the last two years.

CABA President & CEO Ronald J. Zimmer said: "I am extremely delighted that Christopher Martin is joining CABA's Board. His significant experience in research and development will be particularly invaluable to CABA as we focus on developing actionable market research to drive innovation within the home and building automation sector."

Martin is a Senior Manager/Senior Expert at Robert Bosch LLC. He acts as the project manager for the firm's flagship Internet of Things and Services (IoTS) R&D project in collaboration with cross-domain internal and external stakeholders focused on developing new technologies, products and services delivering best-in-class ubiquitous computing user experiences in medium-scale.

He also acts as the technical lead reporting to corporate Board of Directors, responsible for identifying innovation opportunities and creating associated business plans to achieve aggressive regional (North America) revenue growth targets.

Martin also is a Co-Principal Investigator for a three-year, $2 million U.S. Department of Energy (DoE) sponsored project, in collaboration with Carnegie Mellon University (CMU), for the development of an open-source software framework for building energy management..
